Andantino

We stood beside the win_dow — It was the ve_ry same — Where, years a_go to_gether We wrote each others name; I listen'd for the dear words, I us'd to hear from thee — I listen'd, but there came not One loving word for me! I listen'd, but there came not One loving word for me!

I look'd in to the blue depths Of those be_lov_ed eyes — I long'd to see them glisten With thoughts of former ties; I look'd, but oh! they spoke not The ten-der-ness of old! I thought my ve-ry heart strings Would break, they were so cold! I thought my ve-ry heart strings Would break, they were so cold!

My hand, I laid it gently —
 How gently! on to thine —
 I thought its pulse beat quicker,
 I thought it answer'd mine!
 But no! there was no pressure!
 My dream of bliss was o'er!
 I knew the spell was broken —
 That I was lov'd no more!
